Sept 2020 – June 2022

- Organised, planned and delivered taught weekly sessions to approximately 30 first year university students on technical topics appropriate to a number of first year business modules.
- Communicated clearly and professionally verbally as well as in presentations and on handouts, checking to make sure all students fully understood.
- Delivered presentations to large groups of first year students, encouraged discussions amongst workshop groups.
- Helped students to adjust to university life and offered advice on how to prepare for exams, coursework and handle any challenging situations they found difficult.

Awards and Languages

Awards:

- PAL Leader of the Year 2020: awarded for my drive and determination and ability to support first year students.
- Employee of the Year 2019 at TK Maxx: awarded for excellence in customer service and a record number of customer and staff compliments received.

Technical skills:

- In-depth knowledge of MS Office and competent user of SAS MS Visio and data analytics package SAS.
- Proficient user of social media including Twitter, LinkedIn, Facebook and Instagram
- Basic coding skills using Python.

Languages: Fluent in Urdu and English, basic Spanish and currently learning Arabic.

Skills and Motivations

Resilience and Drive:

- My disability only increases my motivation and makes me determined to prove my doubters wrong. After a relapse I was informed that I was unlikely to walk unaided again. However, I was determined to achieve this and so designed myself a routine of regular exercise that I kept to despite setbacks. This required a large amount of patience, commitment and motivation, especially when my improvements slowed down. My motivation and determination to keep persisting with the exercises was successful as I am now walking well and unaided.

Communication and Presentation:

- Communicate effectively both verbally, by giving effective presentations, and in writing through producing both strong academic and business reports when developing the new marketing strategy whilst on placement.
- Retail work demonstrates my ability to continually communicate with team members, leaders and customers.

Research and Analytical:

- Whilst writing my final year project, undertook in depth investigation, collected complex information and used a variety of different approaches in order to reach conclusions about the potential impact of Brexit on imports.

Team working:

- Group based projects at university have developed my skills in working within teams to meet targets, share tasks equally, compromise and work with individuals who might not have the same goals as my own.

Planning and Organisation:

- Effective at prioritising, always to order of importance and urgency of tasks, use small milestones, can handle large volumes of tasks simultaneously and work systematically to make sure they are completed perfectly.
- Proven track record of planning, organizing events and action planning in school and university, performing as club leader at school and currently as a PAL Leader at university.

Activities and Interests

Business Awareness: Active member of University of Bradford Business Society participating in business debates and social activities. Also keep up-to-date with latest international and UK business and technology trends.

Travelling: Travelling overseas to Pakistan and Bangladesh to help those in less fortunate positions has developed my confidence to communicate and work effectively with people of different ages, backgrounds and cultures.

Charity work: Involved with various charitable projects including volunteering as a street-collector for Barnardos, representing the university as a PAL leader and organising sports tournaments to fundraise for RAG week.

Personal fitness: Regularly take part in team sports, such as netball and volleyball and enjoy going to the gym around three times a week for physical fitness.
