Learning, Teaching and Assessment Strategy

The Professional Capabilities Framework (PCF) is a supporting structure that helps both aspiring and qualified social workers think about the skills, knowledge, and values they use in their practice. The framework lays out what is expected at all stages of a social worker's career, from entry level into education to the most advanced level.

There is a range of personal qualities that all social workers require, and an awareness of social context and the impact this can have are essential prerequisites for undertaking education to be a professional social worker. As a part of the expectation at the point of entry, students are required to undertake 20 skills days before they go on placement. These skills days are embedded within the module across the first year of their programme. In addition, students are given the opportunity and are strongly encouraged to attend further optional enrichment sessions which are largely hosted in the second half of the programme.

Capabilities will include developing communication skills, the ability to stay composed, developing a basic knowledge of relevant social work legislation and policies, and an awareness of social issues when thinking about social justice and rights-based practice.

Students will be supported to critically explore social work practice through a series of themed workshops. All the sessions are co-delivered by a combination of academic, practitioner/employer and by people that access social work services. There will also be an opportunity for students to lead some of the sessions when considering the 'enrichment' element to the module in the second half of the module.

The sessions adopt a discussion-based approach to learning therefore the workshops will be interactive. Learning will also be supported by small group activities, directed reading and research activities, as well as themed seminars, and tutorials.

The learning strategy will utilise video and case studies and up to date case reviews. Students will be supported to develop their academic writing and reflective assessment skills during the workshops. This will complement the 'Ethics, Professionalism and Reflective Practice' module and 'Social Work Theories & Methods' module.

Sensitive topics are publicised within the scheme of work and are made available to students in advance. This enables students to prepare and seek tutorial support prior to the session. Tutors will use personal tutorial time to discuss the appropriateness of making peer disclosures in relevant and safe settings.

Students are required to evidence the Professional Capabilities Framework (PCF) in accordance with British Association of Social Work at the Level Readiness for Direct Practice:

<https://www.basw.co.uk/system/files/resources/pcf-readiness.pdf>

The schedule of sessions varies year on year depending on the availability of external speakers and to ensure the module maintains its currency. Note that the schedule is made up of ? day sessions (two of which make up one full skills day ? this is made clear on the schedule). Details of the schedule and skills days can be found in the current module handbook. Typically, about 25 skills days are planned within the schedule to allow for any absences due to illness etc. All sessions are mandatory unless good reason is given for absence.

Summative Assessment consists of two components and students are required to pass both:

- 1) An individual viva of 10 minutes evidencing readiness for direct social work practice linked to the PCF. Supplementary - following feedback you will be required to update the original and a reflective narrative.
- 2) Attendance of the skills sessions is a pre-requisite to passing the module.

Formative assessment will be through reflective blogs (written, video, audio, or other form) that are integral to the VIVA at the end of the module.
